Dinosaur National Monument spans more than 200,000 acres. Thousands of fossils were discovered here in 1909, and 80 acres were declared a protected national treasure in 1915. Visitors from all over the world travel to Northeastern Utah to see the vast stretches of visible evidence that dinosaurs once roamed the earth.

In addition to dinosaur fossils and dinosaur footprints, this part of Utah is home to many ancient petroglyphs (carvings in stone) and pictographs (paintings on stone). Plan your family trip today!
